

L to R: Bob Lutz, architecture; Scott Mosby, owner; Rich Layton, sales; Tyler Cluff, construction.

Mosby Building Arts Takes Care Of Families And Their Homes

For 60 years, Mosby Building Arts has been the trusted name in home improvement expertise. In 1947, Sam Mosby was a carpenter working out of his truck who became a trusted builder and remodeler to his loyal clientele. In 1983, his son Scott Mosby took over the family business.

From architecture and remodeling, to repair and evaluation, Mosby manages the needs and desires of a changing lifestyle. A tradition of outstanding craftsmanship, honest answers and smart solutions is what makes Mosby Building Arts the caretaker of Webster-Kirkwood homes.

For living self-sufficiently at home, Mosby is the source for universal design that accommodates all ages and abilities. Several staffers are Certified Aging In-Place Specialists (CAPS), and Scott educates listeners about mobility design on his KMOX call-in radio program, "The Home Improvement Show with Scott Mosby." In recognition of his efforts, the National Home Builders

Association has named Scott the CAPS Designee of the Year, and he is honored to act as the "ambassador of mobility."

To insure that clients live in a healthy house, the remodeling firm has added esteemed architect Bob Lutz to their design staff. Bob served as president of the Solar Energy Association and has won national awards for his energy efficient home designs. Scott Mosby co-founded the Green Builders Council of St. Louis in 1994. As Scott notes about he and Bob: "We were green before green was cool!" Their green experience and Mosby's Energy Star-certified home energy audits help clients save money on utility bills and improve indoor air quality.

Celebrating the milestone of their 60th year of service has strengthened Mosby's commitment to creating environments of enduring quality that elevate the way you live. Or as the Mosby team is fond of saying, "We're improving life one home at a time."

Insightful Architecture • Responsible Remodeling

Downtown Kirkwood • 909-1800 • mosbybuildingarts.com